“At age 17, I was diagnosed with endometriosis, a disorder of the reproductive system that causes pain and carries a risk of infertility.

While I could live with the physical pain, the idea that I may be unable to conceive was horrifying. Many years later, newly in graduate school and uninsured, I found myself unable to pay for the birth control that kept my pain at bay and preserved my fertility. A friend suggested I visit Planned Parenthood, and with efficient, caring service, I was able to obtain birth control at a fraction of the pharmacy price, and stay on the plan my doctor had set for me to save my fertility. I am now the proud mother of two amazing kids.

- Courtney, PPIL patient”
